Stormproof your business with these 4 tips

Monsoon season is right around the corner, which means lightning, heavy rain and high winds that can bring down power lines. Keep your business prepared with these tips:

1. Sign up to receive outage alerts via text. With SRP eNotes™, you can receive text alerts about outages in your area that could impact your business.

To sign up for this service, visit srp.net/business-outage.

2. Create a business continuity plan with key employees that considers the impact of power disruption. Define roles and responsibilities and make sure everyone is trained on the plan.
3. Identify processes and equipment that would be affected by an outage, such as key electrical equipment, alarm systems, elevators, lighting and AC units.
4. Build an outage supply kit that includes emergency phone numbers, flashlights, a first-aid kit and car adapters/chargers for electronics.

Download SRP's free business outage planning checklist at srp.net/outage-checklist.

DID YOU KNOW:

If you currently have smart thermostats at your business, you can enroll in the SRP Bring Your Own Thermostat Program™ (BYOT) for business.

Our BYOT program is designed to reward your business for using less electricity during hours of high demand. This is better for the environment and helps ease strain on the power grid. What's more, you'll get paid to participate.

After you enroll, you'll receive a $50 SRP bill credit per thermostat. You'll also earn a $25 bill credit (per eligible thermostat) each year you remain enrolled in the program, paid at the end of the conservation event season.

Visit srp.net/byotbiz to learn more and enroll.
